

To consumers of North American Herb and Spice:

With the recent scare of contaminated raw materials coming from China, consumers need to know where ingredients in supplements come from. Many manufactures import raw materials from China because of the low cost which often indicates poor quality standards.

North American Herb and Spice has the highest standards when it comes to choosing the herbs, spices, fruits, and exotic plants when formulating a product. You can be assured when you buy a bottle from North American Herb and Spice, that absolutely no ingredients were imported from China. The quality of our supplements is shown in many ways. All of our products are either wild or organic and are always non-GMO.

Our spices are of the finest in the world, coming mostly from the Mediterranean region. The berries untouched by chemicals, pesticides, or herbicides are picked from remote place in Canada. Every ingredient is extracted with methods that require little or no heat (cold pressed). No fillers, binders, or additives are used in any formulation we produce. We take pride in being GMP (Good Manufacturing Practices) certified, researched and tested, chemical free and ecologically conscious. If there is an ingredient that we need to receive from a third party, the utmost care is used to ensure that they meet our standards.

Every single batch that is produced for North American Herb and Spice is tested with a Certificates of Analysis being produced for that particular batch. North American Herb and Spice is dedicated to bringing you the finest supplements around. We always give you something special and you can be confident we care for the health of every individual.

Thank you for being supporters of North American Herb and Spice. We value you as a consumer and someone who is dedicated to health as much as we are.

Respectfully,
North American Herb and Spice Team
